Brain Symposium

Featuring Daniel Pink

An annual multi-day symposium designed for practicing educators focusing on learning and the brain.

Daniel H. Pink is the author of five provocative best-selling books. He uses a mix of social science, survey research and rich stories to address how to be more effective at work and how to persuade, influence and move others. Pink's TEDTalk about the science of motivation is one of the 10 most-watched TEDTalks of all time.

July 6–9
Monday – Thursday

Lab School @ Punahou

With an emphasis on teachers collaborating with teachers through facilitated inquiry and dialog, Lab School is a cohort-based program designed to explore topics around teaching and learning. Working with and observing Punahou Summer School classes, choose among multiple strands to focus on creating a product to put into immediate practice.

July 21 – 23
Tuesday – Thursday
$800

Administrative Leadership Institute

In partnership with Hawai'i Association of Independent Schools

Michael Thompson and Rob Evans lead this enriching program on relational and personal leadership for school administrators who are involved in supervision, assessment and communication with parents. This program is designed for administrators and focuses specifically on the challenges of such roles. While not specifically for heads of school, it may still be relevant. Teams who attend together have found it especially helpful.

Thompson and Evans are clinical psychologists with extensive experience working in and consulting for schools, as well as being well-known authors.

July 27 – 30
Monday – Thursday

Global Education Teacher Strand

Intersecting with Punahou's Student Global Leadership Institute, this workshop gathers a cohort of educators for four days of learning, exploring and designing globally focused curriculum. The collaboration begins by defining the essentials of global education and working together on projects to implement in participants' schools.

Facilitated by Emily McCarren, Punahou School, and Usha Kannemadugu, Oakridge School, Hyderabad, India.

All programs held at Punahou School. More information and registration at www.punahou.edu/professionalprograms.
